

Looking ahead in the future, I feel very confident that I will be a very experienced Chinese teacher and a person who understands deeply both the American and Chinese cultures. Therefore I believe there are many things I can do to contribute to our increasingly diverse and global community.

I will continue to teach Chinese, not only to advocate the language to my students, but also help my students understand Chinese culture. I will prepare them to be ready to become a global citizen.

I will help the community to build up a program to help the need of people who want to know the Chinese language and get familiar with the Chinese culture.

I will hopefully take my students to China every year for educational trip to experience the language after they have learned it.

I will help my school to set up a sister school with China, so every year we can exchange students. Our students will have the chance to study abroad, and learn from various people and lifestyles and help the society improve the future.

I will help other new teachers to teach a classroom. I will help them to know the classroom culture in the US, and how to deal with the culture difference.
