

Personal Statement

My educational philosophy is that everyone can enjoy learning a foreign language and that everyone can be successful. Through learning foreign languages, people can have a broader and better understanding about the world and themselves so that a more harmonious world can be created. It is the teacher's responsibility to provide students with trusting environment, differentiated instruction, cross-culture theme, and critical thinking. At the same time, the teacher should have mindfulness for his or her own inner and physical health as well as professional development.

My majors covers four fields including teaching Chinese, teaching English, education management, and secondary education. It is my goal to be a life-long learner after I have received two master degrees. Being happy and helpful have shaped my charisma. I have travelled around the world and engaged in a myriad of athletic and artistic activities.

The year of 2018 is my thirty-fourth year to be a dedicated and accomplished educator. The personal needs, dispositions and the growth of the students are prioritized in my life. I used to teach English in China as a high school teacher. I attained The Master Teacher title, which is top grade teacher-the highest national honorable endorsement to teachers from K-12 in China. The year 2012 witnessed me embark on teaching Chinese in Akron, Ohio. Currently, I work as a Mandarin Chinese teacher and Chinese club moderator in a privileged private girl school in Wellesley, Massachusetts, during which, a donation of money was sent to Loudi Orphanage in Hunan Province, China in my honor thanks to my present student's appreciation of me. I also got a letter of appreciation from my former high school in that one Chinese learner donated money to the school fund in my name.

My students are high achievers both in standard Chinese proficiency tests and cultural performances. I have organized two travels to China from America and helped four schools to build sister school relationship between China and America. I trained a lot of teachers both in China and in America by hosting workshops and writing books.

Life is full of ups and downs. My career is demanding and rewarding!
