"一盘糖醋鱼五十块钱".

3. Students worked in pair. Each student helps her/his partner to order one cup of drink, two Chinese dishes by using the sentence pattern what do you want to drink"你想喝什么" what do you want to eat "你想吃什么?"

of the Chinese dish and asked the other group to get the price "一盘糖醋鱼多少钱?". Each student of the second group tells the price for each Chinese dish by using the sentence pattern

4. Students worked in pair. One student is the seller and sells a drink to another student, they are required to use "(可乐)一瓶多少钱?", "给你…钱" and "找你…钱".

Interpretive activity:

- 1. Students answer the questions associated with how much is it when they see the pictures of Chinese dishes with prices
- 2. Teacher give every student several paper money and let them report "一共多少钱".

Presentational activity:

Role play: After several times of practice, each group presents the skit to the whole class. After ordering the meal, students need to count how much their lunch cost. Each group has to calculate a bill to make sure the amount is accurate.

Three modes activity:

Roles play: Students are divided into groups of 3. In each group, 2 students act as customers and 1 student acts as a waitress/waiter. Each student takes turns to be a customer and a waitress/waiter. Each group of students discuss and decide what they want to order based on the menu. During discussion, students have to circle the dish they want to order on a menu.

The waitress/waiter comes to take orders and ask some questions. After the meal, customers ask for a bill and pay for the meal. The waitress/waiter asks and answers some questions.

After several times of practice, each group presents the skit to the class.

How much does our lunch cost?

Each group has to calculate a bill to make sure the amount is accurate.
